Security and Quality Advisory No. 30 New Arrangement on Access of IMO Information

This circular letter draws the attention of the concerned parties to the new arrangement on access of IMO information and to encourage all concerned parties to obtain update information from the “Global Integrated Shipping Information System” (GISIS) website.

1. The IMO used to provide, in circular series MEPC.3 - MEPC.6, different circulars for reception of oily wastes, reception of noxious liquid substances residues, pollution prevention equipment and national contact points respectively. However, these circular series are no longer issued after the IMO has launched an electronic database GISIS on its website to facilitate global access of information.
2. Users may register online for free access to the resources. The following information could now be obtained from the IMO’s GISIS website:
